

AAIS Teacher Support Pack

Education Restart

This is definitely a year like no other in the run up to preparing for the return to school. For some children and parents returning to school can be an exciting time, but for many this can be a very difficult and anxious time for both children and parents. Therefore, planning for returning to school is very important, especially for children with Autism.

Collaboration between school and home is essential in order to get the best from these resources and, in turn, to best meet the needs of your pupils.

This pack contains a variety of social stories and schedules of key procedures/situations which may make the return to school smoother. We have included an outline of some key points about the challenges your pupils may face going back to school.

This pack has been produced to reflect Government guidelines, as of August 2020. Please bear in mind that guidelines are subject to change.

Best wishes for a safe and successful return to school life for you and your pupils.
